Read the book? Seen the movie?

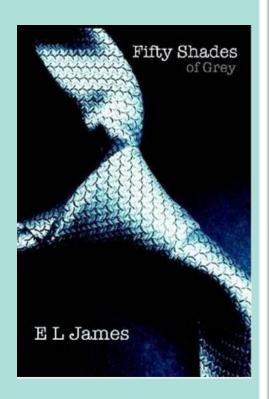

50 Shades of Evaluation

With Prof. Nadja Alexander

Overview

- Evaluative mediation approaches within the meta-mediation spectrum
- 2 evaluative models: expert advisory and wise counsel
- Opportunities and risks
- Evaluative and facilitative mediation compared
- What does an evaluative mediator do?

Mediation Meta-Model

| т † | | | | |
|---------------------------------|---------|---------------------------------|-----------------------------------|------------------------------|
| N T E R | PROCESS | Settlement Mediation | Facilitative Mediation | Transformative Mediation |
| V E N T I O N | | POSITIONAL BARGAINING | INTEREST- BASED NEGOTIATING | DIALOGUE |
| M E N S | PROBLEM | Expert Advisory Mediation | Wise Counsel Mediation | Tradition-based Mediation |
| O N | • | | | |

INTERACTION DIMENSION

Assumptions

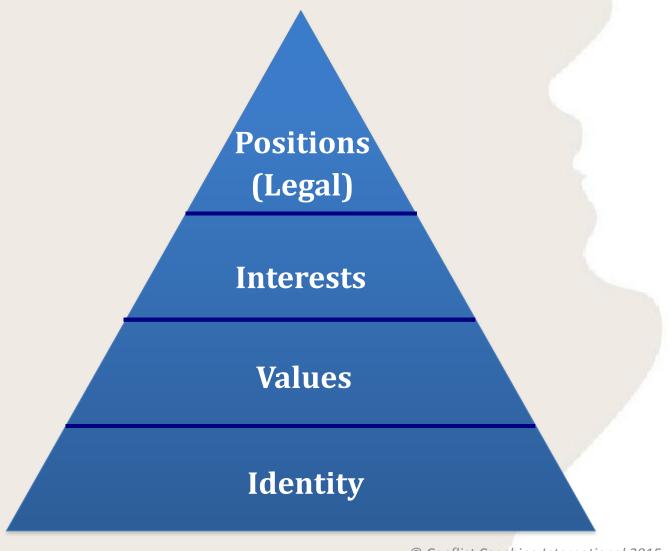

Facilitative

- Parties are best placed to solve their own conflict
- Parties interests are paramount for resolution
- Direct communication between parties
- Parties likely to implement an agreement they create
- Parties satisfied if involved in process
- Duty of impartiality prevents a mediator advising
- Aim: conflict resolution

Evaluative

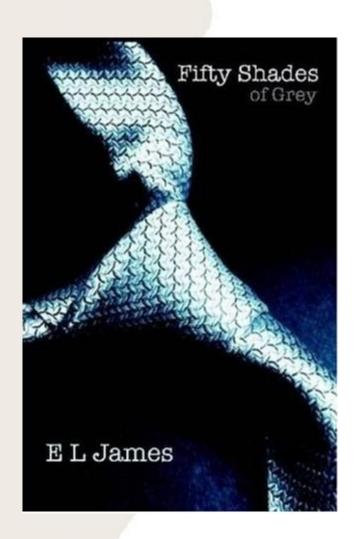

- Party autonomy means choice
- Parties (with lawyers' advice) can make rational choice to protect their vulnerability* with expert mediator OR seek guidance from wise elder
- Mediator is well placed to offer advice
- Mediator is well-placed to identify suitable solution
- Legal form of outcome will maximise enforceability and implementation
- Aim: dispute settlement

What's the aim of your mediation?

50 Shades of Evaluation

- Verbal
- Non-verbal
- Procedural/Structural
- Environmental
- Structural
- Intensity of intervention

More Shades ...

- Providing information
- Expressing an opinion
- Advising
- Being critical or judgmental
- Acting as agent of reality
- Offering a risk assessment

Remember..

- 1. Evaluative mediation is an approach
- 2. There are variations on the evaluative approach
- 3. Look for a mediator with 50+ shades, i.e. someone who can move around the evaluative continuum (and beyond)

Remember..

- 4. Evaluative mediators will work with lawyers to ensure the perception (and reality) of neutrality is maintained
- 5. Check your mediator has professional indemnity insurance which covers advice giving in a mediation context
- 6. Check your agreement to mediate permits an evaluative mediation model

Questions?

